

Highway

A despondent highway is stretched, its eyes set on the far horizon
On the cold dirt of its bosom, its greyish beauty spread

As if some saddened woman in her lonely abode, lost in thought.
In contemplation of union with her Beloved every pore sore, limbs limp with exhaustion.